Profile

I spent six years as an English-to-Persian book translator, publishing over 40 books. I then joined Bit24 as a Content Creator for a year, followed by a three-year remote role with a Swiss crypto company, moving from content to social media management and then business development.

After that, I returned to Bit24 as a crypto journalist, but my focus shifted toward automation and AI. I built an automation system using tools like n8n, eventually becoming the go-to person for the company's AI and automation needs.

Around the same time, I started pursuing an MBA in Project Management at the University of Tehran (UT), which shifted my focus toward product and project management. I left Bit24 in March 2026.

Currently, I'm relocating to Armenia to better connect with the global market and access better opportunities. I'm looking to transition from my content background into product management, though I'm also open to roles in project management or business development.
